

What does it mean to be a #BeeWell Coalition Partner?

#BeeWell is a programme that annually measures the wellbeing of young people and brings together a Coalition of Partners from across civil society to deliver meaningful, youth-centred actions as a result. In doing so, #BeeWell combines academic expertise with support from the education, voluntary and business sectors in order to make the wellbeing of young people everybody's business. But what does it mean to be a #BeeWell Coalition Partner?

What you can expect from us

- A commitment to share our learnings to improve all of our efforts and thereby ensure that, together, we make the wellbeing of young people everyone's business.
- We will bring you into a community of other #BeeWell Partners who are all committed to listening to young people's voices, acting together and celebrating wellbeing to drive change.
- We will provide you with opportunities to network and share ideas on best practice with other Partners.
- You will receive regular updates from the #BeeWell team about progress and opportunities to get involved.
- We will add your name and logo to the #BeeWell website as a named Coalition Partner.

What we ask of you as a #BeeWell Partner

- That you act, as best you can, upon what young people tell us through the #BeeWell Survey – either through your own programme delivery, policy development, further research, budget allocation or more generally to understand and share the challenges and opportunities facing young people around their wellbeing.
- Celebrate young people's wellbeing through your own work and be an advocate for this strengths-based approach.
- Keep confidential within your organisation any information that we provide to you unless agreed otherwise.

- Where possible, participate in the Coalition of Partners meetings (these happen roughly 3 times a year, as 2-hour digital meetings) to remain up to date on the progress of #BeeWell, collectively agree how to respond to what we hear from young people, provide guidance and suggestions for programme improvement, and network with other members of the #BeeWell movement.
- Where possible, support us to spread the word about the work of the programme during key milestones (e.g., #BeeWell Day, publication of survey results or key reports) via your social media and communication channels.
- Seek to react in a timely fashion to any requests from schools but not use the #BeeWell relationship to approach schools to offer services.
- Where possible participate in, or assist, research that builds upon the domains and drivers of young people's wellbeing.
- Be willing to share, subject to confidentiality constraints, with us and other partners any relevant learnings from your further work based on #BeeWell data and allow us to do joint communications with you around any such further work.
- Wherever possible, embed youth voice into your own response to #BeeWell data.

Our Youth-Centred Principles

#BeeWell was founded in Greater Manchester where young people from the Greater Manchester Youth Network's Health Action Champions created a series of principles for our partners who want to embed youth voice in response to the #BeeWell data:

1. Be inclusive: work with a diverse range of young people and create accessible opportunities to get involved.
2. Create a safe space: where young people's opinions are respected, their voices are centred, and partners treat them with honesty and understanding.
3. Give feedback: provide consistent feedback to young people on what you do with the #BeeWell data, trial big ideas and keep young people in the loop with what happens next.
